

BULGARIA

Date of Elections: 7 June 1981

Purpose of Elections

Elections were held for all the members of Parliament on the normal expiry of their term of office.

Characteristics of Parliament

The unicameral Parliament of Bulgaria, the National Assembly, is composed of 400 Deputies elected for 5 years.

Electoral System

All Bulgarian citizens at least 18 years of age are entitled to vote unless they are serving a sentence of imprisonment or have been declared insane.

Electoral registers are revised before each election at the level of the municipality by the executive committees of the local people's councils. Voting is not compulsory.

All qualified electors are eligible for the National Assembly. The parliamentary mandate is not deemed incompatible with any other function.

Candidates are generally members of a political party. They can in fact be nominated either by a party, a social or economic organization or directly by the electorate, in which case the support of at least 20% of the voters of the particular constituency is required.

The 400 Deputies are elected in a like number of constituencies by absolute majority vote. If no candidate obtains an absolute majority on the first ballot, or if less than an absolute majority of the total number of registered electors have voted, a second or subsequent ballots are held until these requirements are met.

By-elections are held to fill National Assembly seats which fall vacant between general elections unless the vacancy occurs within the last six months of the legislature.

General Considerations and Conduct of the Elections

As in the past, candidates for the National Assembly were proposed by the country's two political parties, various social and economic organizations and individual electors in the different constituencies. The Bulgarian Fatherland Front—the mass organization unifying political and social groups, trade unions, the youth movement and individual citizens—in turn nominated one candidate for each one of the 400 constituencies; these included 271 members of the Bulgarian Communist Party, 99 members of the Bulgarian Agrarian

Party and 30 candidates without party affiliation. All were elected on polling day, which was marked by a massive voter turnout. Women members chosen numbered 87.

On 16 June, the new National Assembly met to elect the State Council and the Council of Ministers. President Todor Zhivkov heads the former, while Mr. Gricha Filipov is Chairman of the latter.
